NATIONAL PREVIEW-REVIEW

everyone's choice—Ohio State's defending national champions.

This year, the Buckeyes certainly will have a say-so in the national race, but Michigan, which tied Ohio State for the Big 10 title, figures to be in the battle.

Texas and Arkansas will stage another of their familiar shootouts for the Southwest Conference championship.

On the Pacific Coast, where Johnny McKay dreams of USC being the first coast school to go to the Rose Bowl five consecutive years, the Trojans are challenged by Stanford and UCLA.

Of the top "form chart" entries, only Penn State appears without a serious challenger for its area laurels.

In the Big Eight Conference, where the teams finally made their appearance on the offensive statistical charts, there's a good race forecast among Missouri, Nebraska, Colorado and Kansas State.

In the Southeast, Manning gives Ole Miss a little edge, but LSU, Florida, Tennessee and Auburn are loaded, too. Memphis State appears to be the class of the Missouri Valley, and San Diego State lists no logical challengers for its laurels outside the Pacific Eight on the West Coast.

Army and Navy figure to be improved, while the Ivy League appears to be a dogfight among Dartmouth, Princeton and Yale.

In the Western Athletic Conference, where racial problems upset Wyoming and Brigham Young last year, defending champion Arizona State is a shaky favorite, ahead of Arizona and Utah.

NATIONAL CHAMPIONS, 1924-1969

Texas was the 1969 choice of both the writers' and coaches' polls as college football's unofficial national champion. The Longhorns also were voted the Grantland Rice Award by the Football Writers' Association of America.

It was Texas' second national crown in the last seven seasons.

The Associated Press poll of sports writers was originated in 1936 and the United Press International poll of coaches in 1950. Representing opinions of observers across the country, they are the popularly accepted electors to national ranking. Prior to the polls, the Rissman and Knute Rockne trophies symbolized the championships from 1924 to 1936. The titlists so designated:

1969—Texas	1957—Auburn, Ohio St.	1946—Notre Dame	1935—SMU

NATIONAL RATINGS, 1936-1969

The most successful major teams of the past 34 years, according to the ratings produced by the press association polls, have been Notre Dame and Oklahoma. Counting 10 points for each season-end first place rating, 9 for second and so on, the Irish have accumulated 143 points, to the Sooners' next best 102.

Notre Dame	143	Ohio State	85	Michigan	77	Army	61
Oklahoma	102	Texas	81	Mich. State	72	Minnesota	57
Alabama	85	Tennessee	78	Southern Cal	66	LSU	55
